Connection

"It's a heart
thing"

Horses enable us to connect with another being on a nonverbal

tactile emotional & intuitive level.

“Connection” with a horse

- Transcends language
- Stirs inner feelings
- Makes one feel more human
- Cultivates character
- Calms one’s inner being “Intersubjectivity” involves taking the time to reflect upon the perspectives of others.

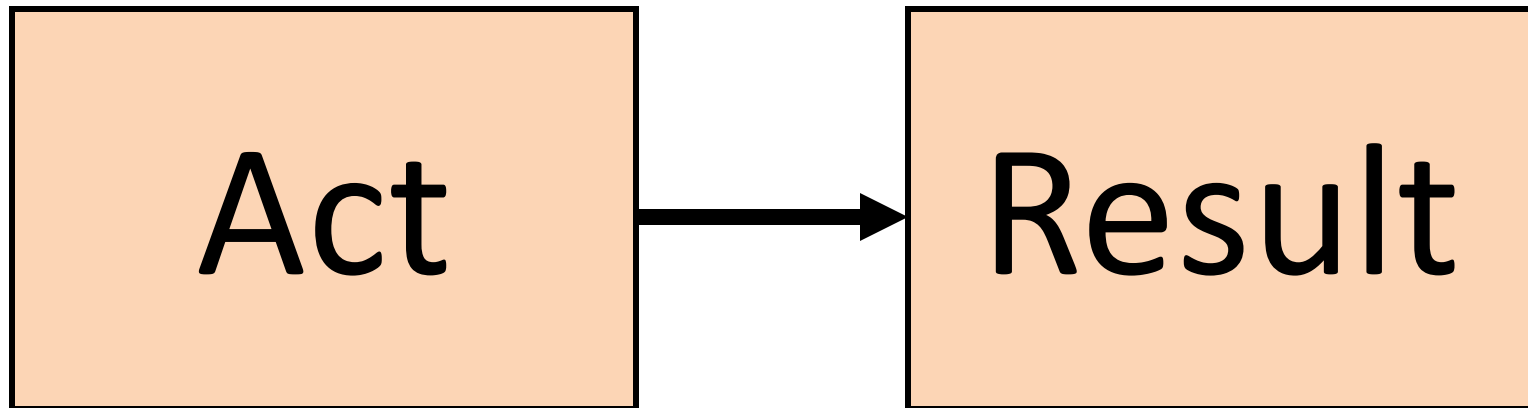

Many activities
inspire confidence

But few deal with communication in the way that we do.

Our Western way of thinking is built upon cause-and-effect.

Horses (and people) suffer if we regard them as objects to be acted upon. No wonder the results are often not what we intended.

At Centaur Rising we try to build two-way communications.

All great horsemen have taken the “thoughts and feelings”
of the horse
into consideration.

How did working with horses influence you to be a different person?

How do you think you are different from your peers?

As a result of working with horses,

“I am more humble.
I better understand
my ‘place in the universe.’”

“I learned how to see through something that seemed impossible in the beginning.”

“I gained self-confidence. I learned that, if I am good with horses, I can be good at lots of things.”

“ I learned to listen to [my] student, to hear what he is trying to tell me, to assess what is happening and to adapt to the individual.”

“Horses gave me patience. It helped me to work better
with other people.”

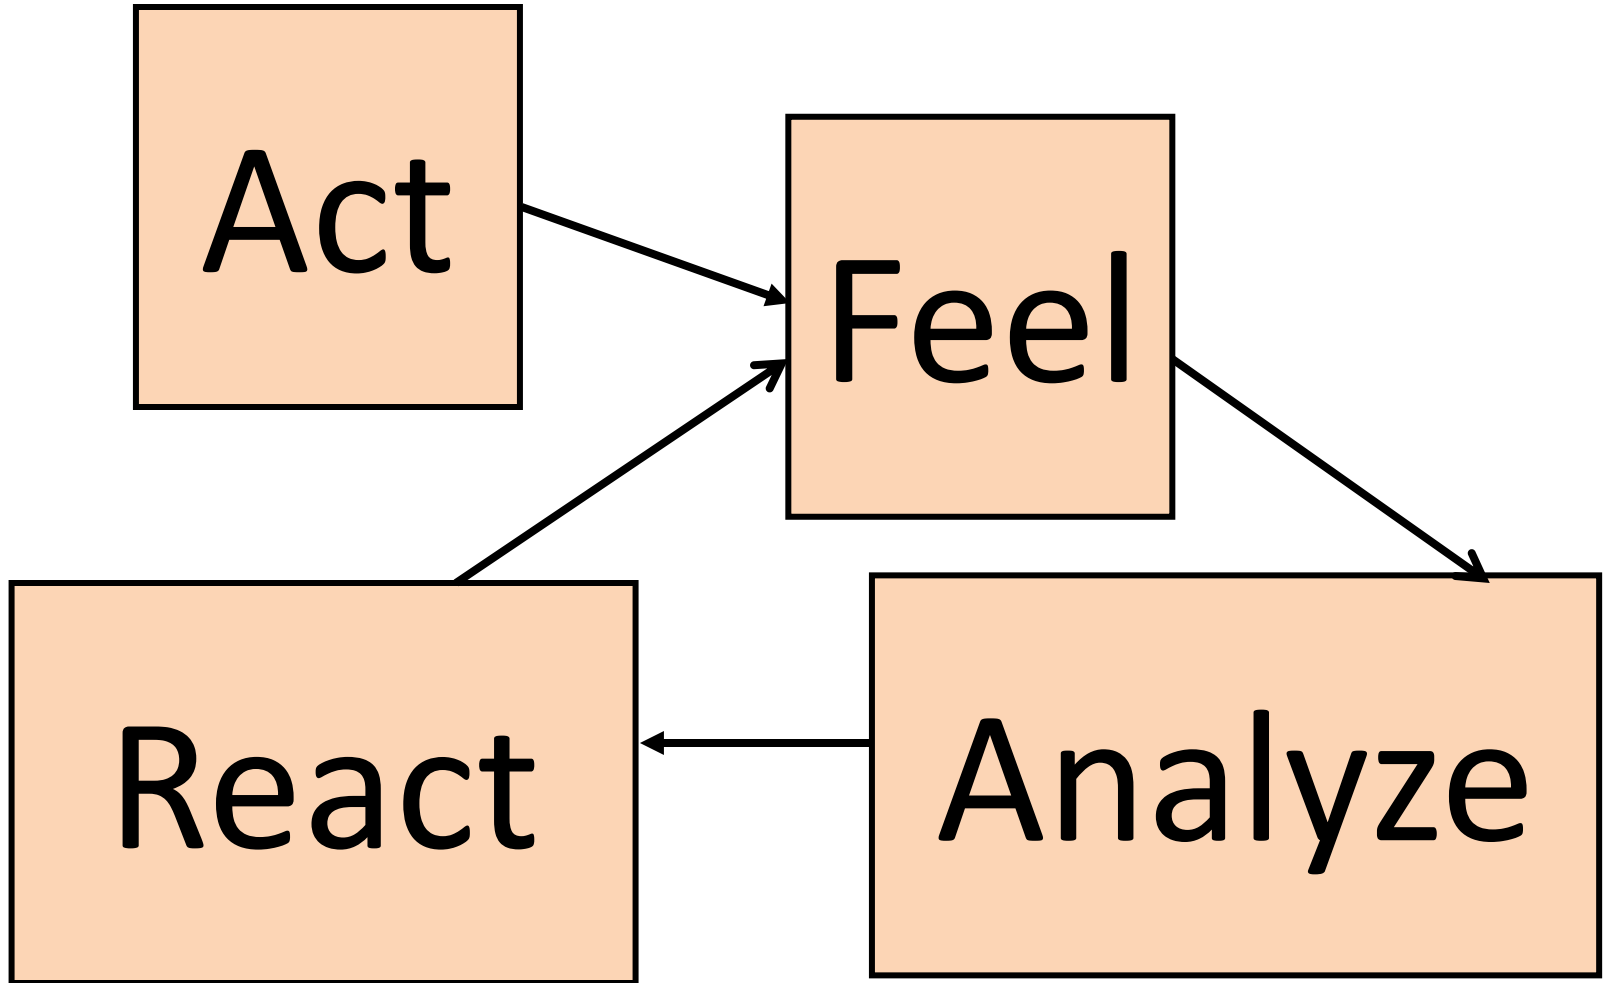

Former participant – now a parent

“ As a result of my work with horses, I am a more feeling, empathetic person. I’m a better parent- kinder, gentler, more patient and understanding.”

Act

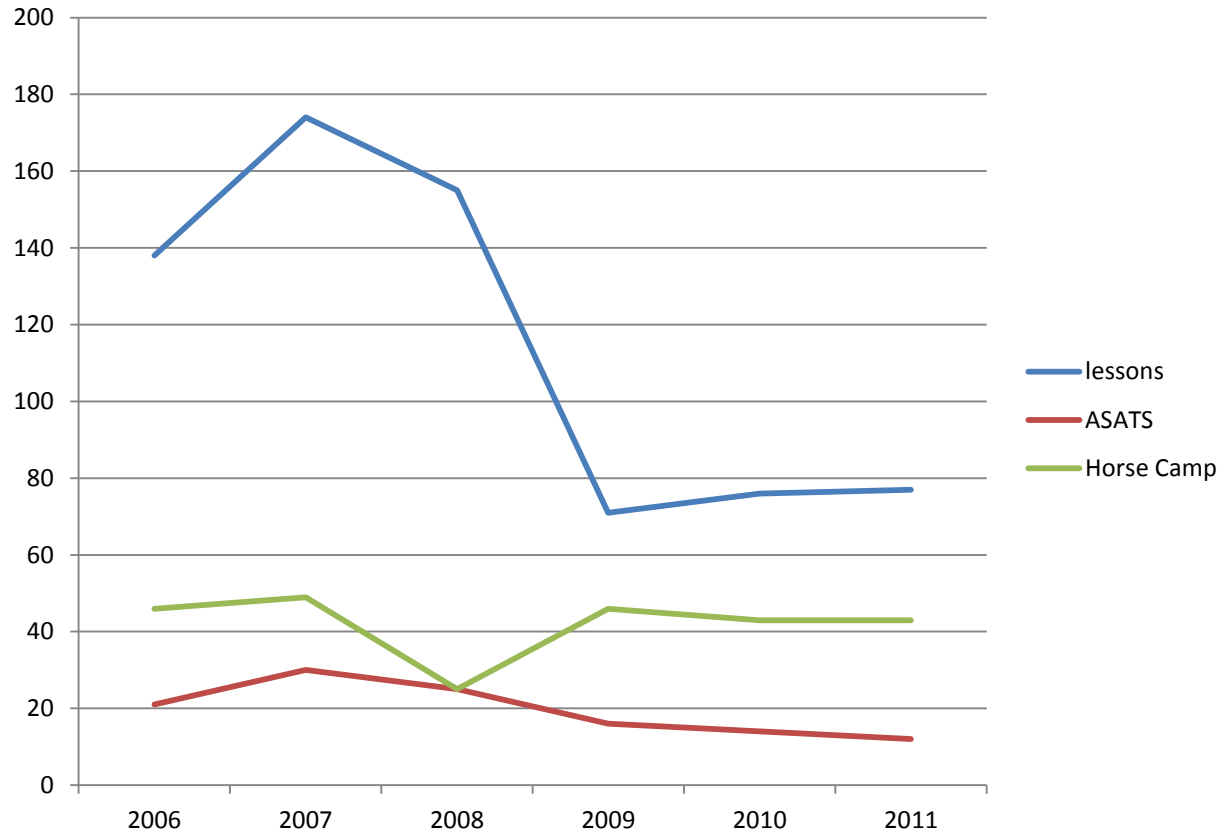

Result

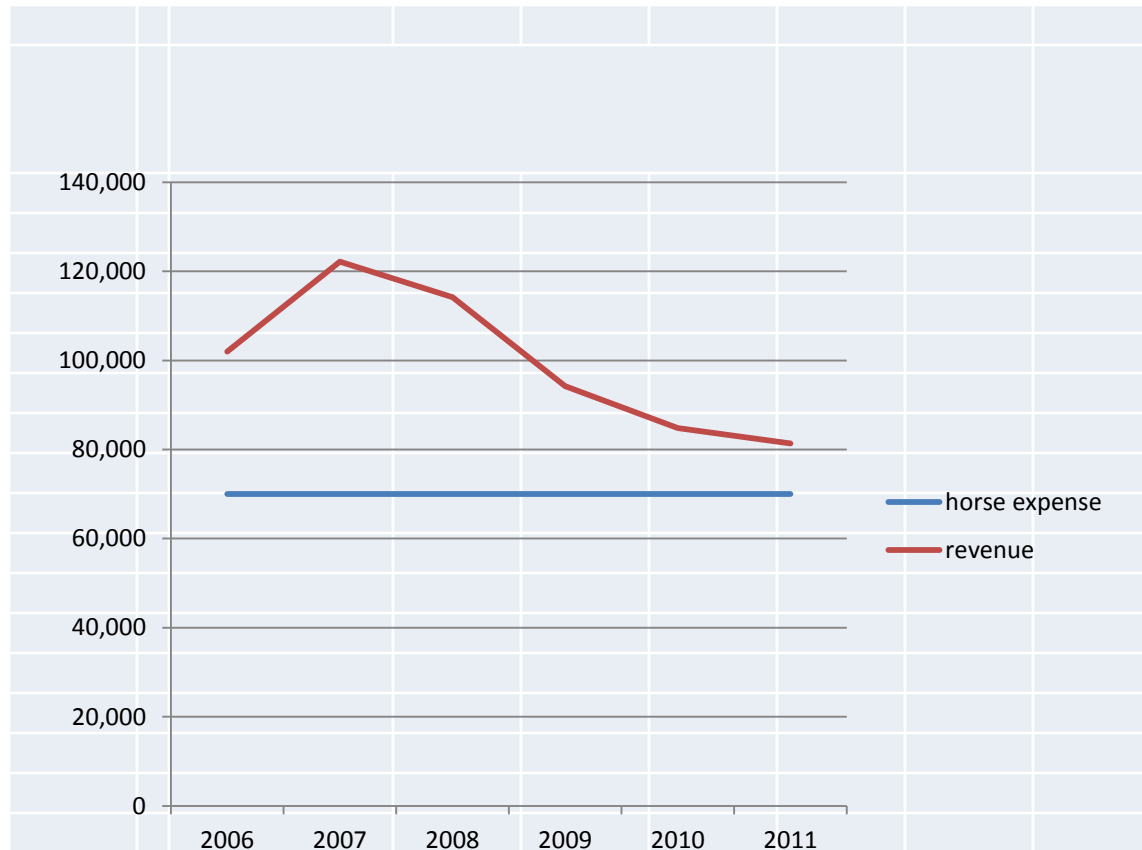

“Horses helped me to realize that if I work on something for a very long time, I may not see progress day to day; but then there’ll be a breakthrough.”

Compared to my peers, “I am more aware of what is going on around me – what the emotions are. I am able to better understand, anticipate and appreciate all of what’s happening.”
